

Gardening Consultants Council

National Garden Clubs, Inc.

Autumn 2016, No. 1

GCC 2016

First issue - October/November 2016

Membership requirements for joining a Gardening Consultants Council can vary from state to state. Generally the rules are the same for most of the councils. In the National Capital Area membership requirements are: Any NCAGC garden club member who has taken all four Gardening Study courses and passed the exams with a score of at least 70% may join GCC. Students who complete any two course are eligible to join the Council as provisional members while they complete the final two courses. To retain membership, consultants must complete at least one refresher GSS course at least once every five years. Members may also refresh by taking an approved (NGC sanctioned) trip/tour.

Goals can be different for each council too. The NCAGC goals are: To stimulate interest in gardening and horticulture to encourage growing plants to their peak of perfection, to keep members and the public informed about advanced gardening techniques, to assist garden clubs by giving programs that promote gardening and horticultural excellence, and to support the Gardening Study School program.

Information and articles on your Gardening Consultants Council and your Gardening Study School is greatly appreciated. Please contact - Cathy Felton, GCC Chairman.

The beginnings of a GCC Council - my story - Cathy Felton

I took my first GSS course in Massachusetts a long time ago. One of my mentors, Betty Johnson, was an enthusiastic cheerleader for getting garden club members to get involved in Gardening Study School. My first class was at Weston Nurseries in Massachusetts and it was a hands-on class in a greenhouse with excellent teaching from the staff at Weston Nurseries. After completing my four courses I really wanted to belong to a Gardening Consultants Council and tried for a number of years to get one started. We began with a small number of interested members with a first meeting in my own back yard. That first year we held a second meeting and that was the beginning of our GCC. We started slowly, bylaws were written later and dues were only $5. Today the Massachusetts GCC has grown, has bylaws and has an enthusiastic membership.

EXCITING NEWS !!!!

Announcing National Consultants Day

NGC National Garden Week and Schools Chairmen are collaborating to challenge all NGC Consultants to celebrate their consultant status and use and share knowledge gained in NGC schools during National Garden Week, June 4-10, 2017. The idea of NGC Gardening Consultants Councils Chairman Cathy Felton is to make NGC's Consultants more visible and vibrant, to give them a stronger purpose and a national purpose and to give them an opportunity to give back by observing a National Consultants Day during National Garden Week. States with Environmental, Gardening and Landscape Design Consultants could coordinate activities of the three groups on one day throughout the state. Or each group of Consultants might embrace activities related to that specific school so that Environmental Consultants have activities one day, Gardening Consultants another day and Landscape Design Consultants on still another day. The second approach might be the way to go for states that are not represented by Consultants in all disciplines. This can be handled any way you want in your club or state. We just want you to recognize your achievement in completing an NGC school and we want you to share the information you have obtained while letting others know about NGC and your state garden club organizations. (from Greg Pokorski, ES, GS, LD Schools Coordinator)

Things that a Consultants Council can do during National Garden Week:

1. Organize a program open to the public - educational
2. Promote an environmental, gardening or landscape workshop for consultants and members of the state garden clubs
3. Collaborate with a school (young or older students) - either teaching some aspect of good environmental, gardening or landscape practices etc., presenting a program, or giving plants or information sheets away to students & teachers
4. Have a program and invite other gardening-related organizations to participate in a program
5. Have an open garden day of members with teaching at each garden
6. Plan a work day (outdoors) at a non-profit center - Audubon, land trust, AMC/Sierra Club etc.

Things that an individual Consultant can do during National Garden Week:

1. Volunteer at a Habitat for Humanity house (or similar non-profit) to do some outdoor cleanup/planting
2. Present an environmental, gardening or landscape program at a school or nursing home
3. Give a program/workshop at your local library
4. Invite gardening friends - (not necessarily NGC members) to your own garden and teach them about how your garden works - or does not work - problems and good environmental, gardening and landscape solutions etc.
5. Write an article on any of these NGC school subjects for your local newspaper
6. Help a neighbor/friend who needs guidance or help in their own garden or yard.

Maine

An NGC Tri-Refresher was held on Sept. 25-27, 2016 after the NGC, Inc. FBM. Participants traveled from Portland, Maine to Bar Harbor, Maine visiting gardens and a botanic garden.

Massachusetts

"The Council meets three or more times a year and offers day trips to regional gardens and nurseries in the New England states, as well as lectures and other learning opportunities from professional and amateur horticulturists."

"Volunteer officers generally serve on the board for two-year terms, and the annual meeting for election of officers is held in the spring. The Council is an excellent venue for novices and experienced gardeners to enrich their gardening experience." (Pat Artis)

GCC Fall Meeting was held on Sept. 29, 2016 . A Propagation workshop will be held on October 24, 2016 for learning about taking hardwood cuttings.

The GCC newsletter is e-mailed to members Fall, Winter, Spring and Summer. The GCC funded the horticulture speaker at the GCFM 2015 Fall Meeting and will donate $500 to the GCFM's Horticulture Mornings - a lecture series.
